To create new offices for an art law firm, an entire floor in the historic Hammacher Schlemmern Building on East 57th Street was gutted, and redesigned with private offices and a conference room around an open-plan reception space—all diffused with natural light and signature works of contemporary art.

A limited color palette in wood, glass, wool and steel, creates a poised, urbane environment—equally conducive to conducting business and viewing the firm’s precisely-curated art collection.
